

Aedan/Aidan mac Gabhran/Gabran/Gabrain

KCS, page 6

Colum Cille (St. Columba) was eager that Christian elements should become attached to the office of king and began what would become a close connection between his monastic federation, or paruchia, and the Scots kings when he insisted in the inauguration of the king of Dal Riata named Aedan mac Gabrain.

KCS, page 7

The Cenel nGabrain dynast Aedan mac Gabrain (died circa 608), the great-grandson of Fergus, might have had some success in extending the bounds of his domain at the expense of the Picts.

KCS, pg 168

Cenel nGabrain Dynasts Seventh to Ninth Centuries

Aedan mac Gabrain

Eochaid

Domnall brecc

Domongarth

Eochaid

Eochaid

Aed find

Eochaid

Alpin

Cinaed I (Kenneth mac Alpin)

Mael Muire m. Aed Finlaith (houses of Scottish Cenel nGabrain and Irish Cenel nEoghan merge and from these descend Suibhne Rudah and maternal side of Clan MacTavish)

©Patricia Adams, Nov 2001.